

How often should my office/building be cleaned for COVID-19 virus protection

How often do businesses need cleaning?

It has been discovered that The Corona Virus RNA (genetic material) remained on contaminated cruise ships for up to 17 days! But the Corona Virus can be eradicated with proper cleaning, disinfectant and sanitization.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends frequent deep cleaning. The areas in your workplace that are touched the most often remain breeding grounds for the virus. Those surfaces will need to be sanitized and disinfected continually when you are aware of the possibility of or the risk of exposure to COVID-19 (Corona Virus).

This virus is not something one can sit by and do nothing. If you do not sanitize and disinfect these surfaces frequently you run the risk of contamination continuing and the ensuing virus remaining in your business establishment and eventually causing it to shut down.

Hiring a professional cleaning company can assist in meeting the demands of frequent cleaning and allow your business operations to continue running smoothly without interruption. But there are additional measures you can enact to minimize the risk of becoming infect by COVID-19 (Corona Virus), in the workplace environment such as:

Have employees clean those areas which are the most touched.

Discourage hand-shaking

Encourage frequent hand-washing for the full duration of twenty seconds.

Promote using hand sanitizers but ensure the sanitizer remains on the hands for the full twenty second duration recommended when washing hands with soap and water.

Meetings can be held by video-teleconferencing or held in areas that are open and well ventilated.

Do what you can to ensure the safety of your employees and customers! But let the cleaning pro's provide the disinfectant and sanitization deep cleaning required to ensure your business will remain open!
